

What to Ask

About Your Doctor's Minimally Invasive Spine Surgery Practice

- 1. What percent of your practice involves Minimally Invasive Spine Surgery (MIS)?
- 2. How long have you been doing MIS?
- 3. How many MIS procedures have you performed in the last 6 months?
- 4. What training have you had in MIS surgery?
- 5. Do you present your work on MIS at peer-reviewed scientific meetings and journals?
- 6. Are you Board-certified by either the American Board of Orthopaedic Surgeons (www.abos.org) or the American Board of Neurological Surgery (www.abns.org)?

* Nationally recognized Board-certification entities are listed in the American Board of Medical Specialties (www.abms.org). The ABOS and ABNS are currently the only recognized Boards for spinal surgery.

“The Society for Minimally Invasive Spine Surgery (SMISS) is a non-profit, tax-exempt, charitable organization devoted to improving the health of patients with spinal disorders by advancing the highest quality minimally invasive spinal care for our patients.”
